Claim Objections

1. The numbering of claims is not in accordance with 37 CFR 1.126 which requires the original numbering of the claims to be preserved throughout the prosecution. When claims are canceled, the remaining claims must not be renumbered. When new claims are presented, they must be numbered consecutively beginning with the number next following the highest numbered claims previously presented (whether entered or not).

Misnumbered claim 7 has been renumbered as claim 6 since there is no claim 6.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

2. Claims 1-3, 7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Smith (6907701).

Smith shows a spacer (14) for applying a corrugated metal panel atop a roof covered by a plurality of rows of shingles, the spacer comprising a strip of resilient foam having a width sufficient to rest flush against the exposed portion of one of the shingles without overlapping adjacent rows and having a height sufficient to project the tops of the shingles in adjacent rows, the resilient foam comprising polyethylene, the strip of foam can be formed into a roll for convenient storage and transport prior to use (inherently capable of being adapted to do so), a corrugated panel 916) is placed atop the strip of resilient foam and fastened thereto by a nail driving through the panel to attach to the roof, the roof comprising a joist, a deck supported by the joist, an underlayment positioned atop the deck, a plurality of rows of shingles positioned atop the underlayment, a resilient spacer (14) positioned atop one of the rows of shingles and projecting above adjacent rows of shingles (figure 3A).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claim 4 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Smith (6907701).

Smith shows all the claimed limitations except for the spacer having a width of about 3 inches and a height of ¼ inch.

Smith further discloses the spacer can be other sizes (col 5 lines 58-61).

It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to modify Smith's spacer to show the spacer having a width of about 3 inches and a height of ¼ inch because it would have been an obvious matter of engineering design choice to choose the space dimension to have a width of about 3 inches and a height of ¼ inch to fit a particular panel size as taught by Smith, and a change in size is generally recognized as being within the level of ordinary skill in the art, In re Rose, 105 USPQ 237 (CCPA 1955).

5. Claim 5 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Smith (6907701).

Art Unit: 3637

Smith shows all the claimed limitations. The claimed method steps would have been the obvious method steps of performing Smith's re-roofing structure.

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. The prior art shows different roofing designs.
